Wbml Epublishing Media Ltd, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 133 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .At five years old Claude Aubrey witnesses the stabbing of his father Jaques, a fisherman and smuggler, at the hands of Alasdair McGonnigle, a Scottish painter who is lodging at his home in the picturesque French fishing port of Collioure on the Mediterranean Sea. Fearing for her own life Claude s mother Antoinette abandons Claude and her husband shortly after the stabbing and flees Collioure. Claude s upbringing at the hands of his brutal father leads him inextricably into a life of crime. Leaving Collioure at the first opportunity, Claude moves to Marseille where he establishes himself as one of France s most notorious crime lords involved in drugs, prostitution and extortion. Using the legitimate cover of his upmarket nightclubs, and despite the best efforts of the police and the French judicial system, Claude has managed to avoid prosecution. Now in his seventies, Claude s sister Valerie, a sister that he had not known about until his father s death, is brutally murdered at his luxury villa on the outskirts of Collioure. The apparent motive for her death is the theft of two paintings by Alasdair McGonnigle that had passed to Valerie on the death of their mother. Claude finds himself in the bizarre situation of assisting the police to catch her murderer. A man known to hedge his bets and not to be denied his rightful revenge, Claude instructs his second-in-command Guillaume Dumas, a former French Legionnaire, to secretly track down the killer and extract retribution. Claude also finds himself struggling with his own personal issues as his son Didier pits himself against Guillaume to take over control of the family business. Will McIntyre...
